Non-Catalyzed versus Catalyzed Grouts

SikaGrout®-885

Sika offers a high performance, nonshrink grout that contains metallic aggregate called SikaGrout®-885. This grout should not be confused with older generation grout products that contained metallic particles or powder often referred to as “Catalyzed” metallic grouts which utilized oxidation of the metal after the grout had hardened to compensate for shrinkage. SikaGrout®-885 utilizes metal only in the form of aggregate that does not oxidize to compensate for shrinkage. SikaGrout®-885 is a “Non-Catalyzed” grout and therefore is not subject to the uncontrolled expansion typical of catalyzed grouts. A precision nonshrink grout, SikaGrout®-885 meets the performance requirements of ASTM C 1107 and CRD-C 621, Grades B and C.

KEY ATTRIBUTES:

- Precision Nonshrink Grout
- Outstanding Flow
- Non-Oxidizing, Non Catalyzed
- Iron Aggregate
- High Strength
- Increased Density
- Malleable Aggregate Absorbs
- Impact and Vibration
- High Temperature Resistance
- Tolerance to Temperature
